

Executive Functioning Teacher Training

Tangible Strategies for the Modern Classroom

What to Expect

This live (in-person or virtual) training introduces teachers to executive functioning skill development and tangible strategies to implement in the classroom.

Trainees can expect to walk away with:

- A deeper understanding of what executive functioning skills are and their relevance in classroom success.
- Fluency in the terminology used to talk about executive functions, including student and parent friendly language.
- Strategies for incorporating executive functioning into classroom routines, subject curriculum, and testing.
- Pragmatic tools to support student and teacher success.

What We Cover

1. Teenage Brain Basics

An introduction to executive functioning, basic neuropsychology terms and concepts, and practical knowledge of the adolescent brain.

2. Executive Functioning & The Classroom

A discussion on the role of executive functions in a successful classroom and tangible strategies to improve student organization and motivation.

3. Executive Functioning & Subject Curriculum

A workshop on incorporating executive functioning into curriculum without compromising the quality of subject matter or instruction.

4. Executive Functioning & Test Performance

A look into the science of studying, performance anxiety, and tools to set students up for test taking success.

5. Learning Differences & Accommodations

An examination of strategies to integrate LD students into the classroom and when/ how to ask for support.

6. Teacher Toolbox

An overview of the take-home resources and on-going support teachers are encouraged to use in future classroom planning.

About the Trainers

Christopher Teare

Christopher holds a Masters in Mind, Brain, and Education from Harvard University, with unique coursework in the intersection of cognitive science, neuroscience, and teaching. As a student-centered educator with a decade of teacher training experience, Chris is masterful at breaking abstract concepts into pragmatic and actionable strategies.

Michael Naragon

With over a decade of experience in the classroom and two decades of experience tutoring for executive functioning, test prep, and academics, Michael is no stranger to what keep great teachers from teaching. As Marigold Prep's Director of Education, Michael is responsible for making sure every student improves their confidence, grades, and/or test scores.

Contact Marigold Prep to learn more:

 (415) 237-3377

 hello@marigoldprep.com

 marigoldprep.com